Abstract of the Disclosure

To offer a loan intermediary processing system and method thereof, which can reduce the labor on both a loan applicant and financial institutions in a loan application

5 and its examination process. An intermediary processing system that acts as intermediary for the loan applicant and the loan-providing financial institutions, comprising a loan application receiving unit 19, which receives loan application from said loan applicant, a financial 10 institution housing loan terms storing unit 15, which stores the terms of loans from a plurality of financial institutions, a financial institution selecting unit 20, which compares said loan application and the terms of the loan from each financial institution and selects the 15 financial institutions, the loan terms of which the application conditions, a loan application sending unit, which sends the loan application of said loan applicant only to the financial institutions selected by said financial institution selecting unit, and a financial 20 institution examination result processing unit 22, which receives the examination results of said loan application from said financial institutions, sums them up, and presents the summary result to said loan applicant.